A series of red horizontal lines are drawn across a grid of light blue horizontal and vertical lines. The red lines are irregular in length and position, creating a sense of movement or a pattern. A single, thin, light blue line forms a curved path that starts at the bottom left, goes up and to the right, then down and to the right again, ending near the bottom right corner. The red lines are primarily located in the upper half of the image, while the blue line is in the lower half.
